

Terms of use - Clarity Developing Ltd.

Clarity Developing is beginning to work on project after receiving an advance payment - first half of the bill. If agreement isn't different, the rest is paid after completing the project. Web sites are put online on live server when all payments are cleared. If it is applicable, hosting and domain must be paid every month.

Additional service comes with additional costs, on basis of the spent working hours. If client needs additional services, those services will be added on client's bill.

All of our services are 100% satisfying. We don't stop work until our client is completely happy with the project. However, Clarity Developing will not be responsible for unreasonable client's desires. Clarity Developing has right to determine if request is reasonable or it fits the frame of services for client. Services which are approved by client are considered as services which will satisfy client's requests. Any additional work on these requests will be invoiced.

If it isn't stated differently, every project is considered as finished after period of one year. This doesn't apply for hosting or domain. If client isn't happy with services of Clarity Developing, client can request refund of unused monies.

Project delay

Project delay may occur when:

- Payment is delaying.
- Client wants changes in design, structure or content of the project.
- Client purchase additional service for the project.
- Client is delaying with providing material.
- Timeframe is approximately estimated time for completing the project, and it can be changed by Clarity Developing. At any time Clarity Developing may put project on hold.
